MOUMO SUPPORTS LOCAL STARTUP BUSINESSES

With a sole mandate of implementing the RBN's Master Plan Policies, Moumo Integrated Development ("Moumo") agency is a primary driver of positive development for RBN stakeholders i.e. local businesses, community members, social structures and cooperatives.

Established in 2013, Moumo Integrated Development is an implementing agent of the Royal Bafokeng Nation's socio-economic status upliftment.

We do so by engaging in initiatives that are geared towards transforming viable areas of RBN's assets to create a vibrant and competitive economy, projects that's improves quality of life to targeted stakeholders and an enabling environment for the community at large.

Plan 35 is focused on increasing; access to employment opportunities, average household income and non-mining and agricultural output. MOUMO Integrated Development enables Plan 35 by engaging in sustainable, diversified initiatives that are growth focused.

Phokeng Mall officially launched on the 25th March 2015 and currently boosts the RLM library and reputable establishments ranging from commercial banks, retail, hardware, corporate offices and eateries; most of which are locally owned.

As part of creating a vibrant and competitive economy, Moumo subsidised the monthly rentals for Local startup businesses. According to Mr. Tshepo Ntlamelle in a study conducted with Wits Business School, "A large number of small business have shown positive growth prospects if they receive necessary assistance during startup phase." The above, speaks to a part of Moumo's strategy which seeks to provide an enabling environment for stakeholders to stimulate and create a vibrant local economy.

South African markets boosts some of the most attractive franchisees that are not only profit driven but stimulate local markets through high quality products, services concerned with long term stability while creating value for social license to operate.

Debonairs Pizza is one such franchise which over the years has provided exceptional returns and directly aligned to entrepreneurs and its partners. Moumo worked closely with Mr. Katlego Kobue ("Katlego") who saw an opportunity to bring world-class services and products closer to home. Opened in April 2017, Debonairs Pizza at Phokeng Mall currently employs youth from around the area, service more than 7 000 walk-in and delivers pizza and related products and services to more customers in and around Phokeng area.

Katlego of Dithabaneng section in Phokeng, plans to employ business strategies he learnt over the years in corporate SA to grow his business at Phokeng Mall.

He chose to open his establishment in the area not only for the promising economic climate around RBN but also to contribute towards Plan 35.

Katlego works closely with Famous Brands, his staff, customers and his parents (both retired educators) to ensure proficient running of Debonairs Pizza in Phokeng Mall. Katlego's advice to entrepreneurs is "Hard work and perseverance doesn't guarantee success but certainly gives you an opportunity of achieving it".

Debonairs Pizza's business model seeks to stimulate the areas in which their stores are located to create value for business owners and partners whilst contributing positively to a vibrant community.

Moumo is proud of Katlego's success and happy that Moumo's subsidies could assist Katlego in establishing this business in his birth town. Moumo looks forward to supporting Katlego with the continued growth of this franchise in the Phokeng Mall.

LEBONE II COLLEGE WINS THE 2018 FESTIVAL OF EXCELLENCE IN DRAMATIC ARTS

Lebone II - College of the Royal Bafokeng was announced as the overall winner of FEDA 2018, with their production 'Malaika' which outshone 60 other schools in the festival.

The annual FEDA (Festival of Excellence in Dramatic Arts) is a prestigious One Act Play Festival, which celebrates excellence in dramatic arts from the best drama departments in high schools across Gauteng and the North West.

The festival is held each year at the Fringe Theatre at the Joburg Theatre complex, and the participating schools enter both original and published works into the competition.

FEDA took place from 7 – 26 May with each school's play performed before a sold-out theatre and a panel of judges, including multi-award winning director and actress Sylvaine Strike, veteran actors Craig Morris, Paul Slabolepzy and Hlomla Dandala, and Market Theatre CEO Ismail Mohammed.

Lebone was nominated for 10 awards overall including Best Actress, Best Supporting Actress, Best Chorus, Best Costume, Most Cutting Edge, Best Director, Best Ensemble, Most Inspirational, Best Sound, Best Original Music/Singing and Best Production.

Four plays were selected for the final on Saturday, including the productions by St Stithians Boys' College and Girls' College, and the Saheti School.

The theatre was packed to capacity as each school performed their production and as Lebone II College was announced as the overall winner of FEDA 2018. 'Malaika' also took the awards for Best Costume, Best Make-up, and Best Chorus.

'Malaika' is an original work, written by Lebone's drama students, which tells a particularly relevant, and poignant story relating to albinism.

The extraordinary cast and crew of students, and their teachers, worked long and hard on this production, and the result is a beautiful and honest piece that is both stirring and inspirational.

National Arts Association Adjudicator, Wendy Coen, called 'Malaika' "an extraordinary spectacle of original oral storytelling and cultural spectacle, using the dynamics of chorus.

Beautiful and fluid transitions; confrontational and extraordinarily tender. A beautiful piece of theatre that astounds in its honesty about the power of love to overcome human prejudice and bloodlust. Deeply moving and provocative."

The prize package for Best Production includes R10,000 for the school, and a professional performance run at both the Soweto Theatre and the Grahamstown Arts Festival. In addition, the talented student director, Naledi Mtshweni, has been offered a director's mentorship by Sylvaine Strike, and the entire cast has been invited to attend the Naledi Awards, by the CEO of the Naledi Awards Association and prominent theatre personality, Dawn Lindberg.

Dramatic Arts is a popular subject at Lebone II College. Students are exposed to the Dramatic Arts from the Lower School and they can take it as a full-time, specialist subject through to matric.

The subject covers the history of theatre and the practical application of dramatic principals, and also looks at all the technical aspects of theatre, from acting to costume and set design, make-up, lighting, sound and production elements.

Lebone's Drama Department brought their other production of 'Sarafina!' to the Lebone II Amphitheatre from 15 - 17 August 2018 .

Royal Bafokeng Institute launches E-Learning Partnership with Royal Bafokeng Institute and Tendopro have entered into a partnership to support learners in three RBN schools.

RBI CEO, Tom Hamilton said the RBI / Tendopro Partnership will augment the existing 'School Within a School' programmes at Thethe and Charora and will also bring much needed resource to Matala Secondary, one of the three transitioning Middle Schools that will produce its first Grade 12 Learners at the end of this year.

Tendopro.com is a social education platform online e-learning tool that helps learners reinforce and solidify important subject concepts taught in the classroom. Revision content is developed and sourced, both locally and from international sources, and is curated and aligned to the CAPS curriculum.

The tool delivers an informative yet fun and engaging learning experience that adapts to modern ways of accessing and consuming content. Learners are rewarded with TENDOBERRIES for interacting with content and for completing revision content and activities.

Tendopro.com launched in August 2016 with Grade 8-12 Mathematics and introduced Maths Literacy in January 2017. March 2018 saw the introduction of Grade 10-12 Physical and Life Sciences, and Grade 8-12 English FAL.

Tendopro is currently assisting over 77000 users with a target to add another 140000 users in 2018. The company's medium to long term aim is to give every secondary school learner and teacher in South Africa access to Tendopro.com resource.

Hamilton said they have adopted the Gauteng ICT and E-Education Strategy for education which spells out 5 vital Pillars for successful implementation and adoption of ICT in the teaching and learning process.

Pillar 1

Connectivity: currently ten schools are connected with Thethe identified as a lead school for an E-Learning Pilot Programme.

Pillar 2

Content: digital content available through the portal for learners and teachers. RBI is already developing Kitsong as a Full-ICT low-fee school in which all learning materials are developed for online learning. This programme is being developed by the Principal, Ken Krige and his young and enthusiastic professional team.

Pillar 3

Capacity: training of teachers on ICT, curriculum and pedagogy.

Pillar 4

Infrastructure: technical support and physical prerequisites such as power, a secure environment for ICT and devices with which to access the resource.

Pillar 5

Innovation: inter-branch management and monitoring of the study, and an innovation group to foster implementation of best practice.

Since the launch of the programme, RBI has registered all learners in Grades 8 & 9, plus all Core Mathematics Learners in Grades 10-12 at the three connected secondary schools. Tendopro will be training Mathematics and Science teachers in the use of the resource and will also train one teacher at each school to be the on-site IT Coordinator.

According to Hamilton, their data suggests that less than 65% of learners at the connected secondary schools have access to a cellphone.

He said RBI is currently speaking to funders in order to ensure that each and every Learner in Grade 8 & 9 as well as all Mathematics Learners in Grade 10 - 12 will be able to receive a simple and inexpensive cellphone with which to engage with the learning materials. "We are delighted that Royal Bafokeng Platinum has kindly agreed to sponsor the provision of these devices at Charora Secondary School and we are hopeful that we will be able to source funding for the same at the other two schools on the pilot programme", he said.

Hamilton further said they aim to show a 10% improvement in marks from Grade 8 to Grade 12 in the first year (by December 2018) and the same again in 2019.

The RBI / Tendopro Partnership is being financially supported by Nedbank. The Programme Manager at RBI is Gadifele Moremi, Mobilisation of Learners and Training of Educators is being led by Jerome Maggerman, MD of Tendopro, the partnership is supported by the Bojanala District Office of the DBE and the Principals, SMTs and SGBs of the three schools.

Hamilton is happy with the partnership saying it is an indication of collaboration between various RBN entities, "Nedbank came to our door in the first place because of a referral from Boitumelo Mputle, our RBA Shared Services HR Manager. We are stronger together", he said.

Celebrating Mandela Day with young women

As the nation celebrated Mandela Day on 18 July, the Health and Social Development Services (HSDS) and RBED did their 67 minutes by holding a workshop for the young women of Mosenthal.

More than 80 young people in the area had an opportunity to learn about the sustainable community development strategy called Asset Based Community Development (ABCD).

The ABCD approach is said to provide a way for people to identify assets that already exist within a community and mobilize individuals to come together and work to build a stronger community.

The five key assets include Human, Social, Physical, Natural, Financial and Institutional assets.

While presenting the model, Mamakie Mothiba of HSDS told the youth that the time has come for them to lead their own development including that of their community using their assets, such as land. She said the power to develop lies within the community itself and that all they need to do is to change mindset.

She encouraged young people to start identifying and mobilizing their own assets by starting projects or small businesses to sustain themselves.

RBED's presentation was focused on business development and its key priorities that include Mining, Tourism, Retail and Manufacturing businesses.

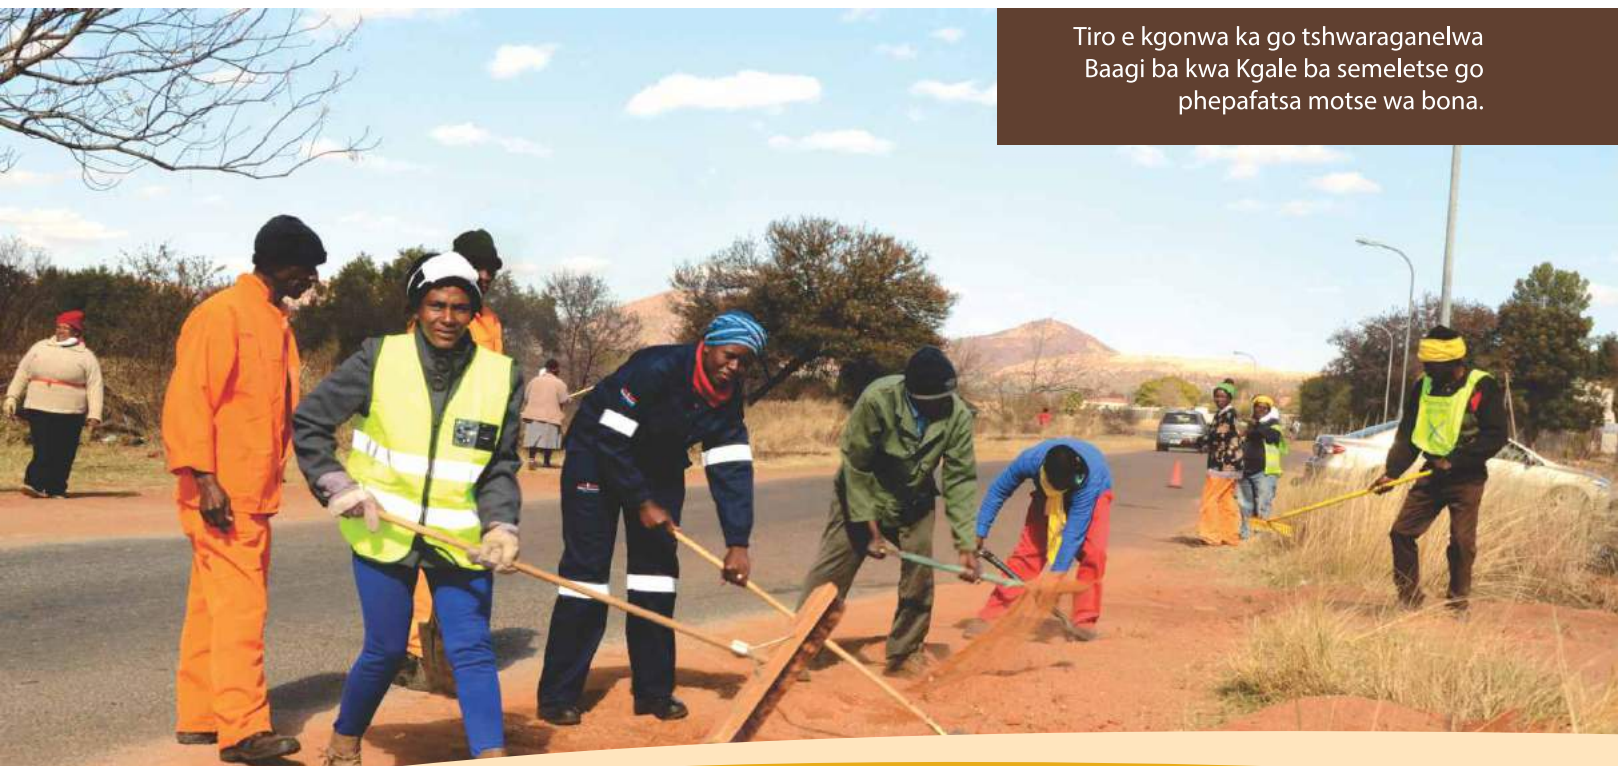

The workshop was supported by the traditional leaders in the area and members of the community who managed to organize food for the participants.

In his words of appreciation, Kgosana Kgaladi expressed his gratitude to RBA for sharing the information and called on young people to use the information to plan for successful future.

COMMUNITY WARNED AGAINST CONSUMING EXPIRED FOODS

The food we eat and buy from tuck shops and other food outlets is controlled by the Food Safety Legislation. The purpose of this Legislation is to ensure that the consumers eat food which is suitable for human consumption and thus not causing illness.

However, given the high price of food these days, more people are tempted to buy foods offered at lesser prices. These could pose public health threat especially if they exceed expiry dates pose public health threat

The RBN Land Unit recently visited shops in various villages to conduct inspection of food items sold to the community.

During the visits to the 29 stores, mostly owned by foreigners, the team found counterfeit goods and expired products; poultry, beef, dairy items and other food stuffs, were far beyond the expiry date.

These were immediately confiscated and destroyed, while the store owners found with counterfeit goods were charged.

Most food packages have a shelf life. This is called the expiry date of the product and it is stamped on the package or container. It helps stores and consumers know how long the food item is safe for consumption. Thus any item sold before the expiry date is considered to be safe for human consumption.

If you are unsure whether the food has expired or safe for consumption especially the canned foods, you are advised to check the following: Any container that:

- Bulges at the flat or round sides or ends or one side of which bulges when the other side is pressed.
- Is in any way blown or from which gas escapes when the container it is opened or punctured. (Excluded are aerated drinks and drinks where gas has been used as a preservative)
- Is so rusted or damaged that the content could be spoiled or contaminated or unsealed.
- Had a leak that was resealed.

Expiry dates cover several different stages. For example, the sell-by date refers to the date when the store will discard the item - you should buy the product before the date expires.

The best before date refers to the quality and taste of a product -- not necessarily the health effects if you consume it past that date while the use-by date refers to the last safe date before the food item starts to turn bad – you should use the product by this date.

Members of community are advised to always check the dates before buying any foodstuffs, stop eating these foods to avoid food poisoning, and to report anyone who sells the counterfeit goods and expired foods to the nearest police station as well as to their leadership in the community

According to the consumer protection act, not only the manufacturers but the retailers also, are fully responsible for the safety of the products they sell.

PROJECT AMANI LAUNCHED IN SCHOOLS

The Department of Education in partnership with MIET AFRICA and Children in Harmony, (CIH) an American based NGO launched a pilot project called Amani. The project is aimed at teaching learners about issues relating to gender equity, empathy and emotional intelligence using music.

Learners and teachers from various schools around Rustenburg and three Bafokeng Schools, Bonnwakgogo, Mabitse and Matlhware attended a week long workshop at Bonnwakgogo from 09-13 July 2018.

Project Amani (Swahili word for Harmony) is a therapeutic project that uses music to help learners to understand and manage their emotions and show empathy for others.

Through positive relationships that they build, learners are able to establish a secure and safe environment for them to improve learning in schools.

During a weeklong training, the participants engaged in activities that helped them to create and practice strategies to build empathy with others.

Back at their various schools, learners through the assistance of their teachers are expected to create a cohort of young leaders who will take the lead in establishing Amani Clubs to help promote good relations, harmony and gender equity in their schools.
