Team determination, mixed with public support, pays off!

They defied the odds, stood bold on the pitch, even in tough games. Their perseverance gained them respect in the Absa Premiership and the football lovers across the country. Platinum Stars Football Club announced, late last year of its plan for the 2012/13 Absa Premiership Season and boldly so, Cavin Johnson, soon as he was promoted from being the Academy Head to Official Coach, promised the Province a Top 5 position at the end of the season.

One would look back and remember the first few games the team played, hard and challenging but they never forgot to keep their heads up. Whenever they entered a soccer pitch, Dikwena, as they are popularly known would present themselves with pride.

The season has ended and the boys are all smiles, the Province is proud and Coach Cavin Johnson has reached his goal beyond expectations. With the likes of Benson Mhlongo, an experienced star, he continued, all through the season, grooming and encouraging young ones to play inspirational football. Team work was crucial and everyone worked as one to achieve the unanimous goal of being the champions. Not only did management invest in upcoming players that were not known in the soccer industry, but also in a technical team of high calibre. Tintswalo Tsalabala, Rofhiwa Tshikovhi, Rojer Majafa, are some of the big names that made waves, with the local boy, Michael Mabule, from Kanana Village. Godfrey Sepuru, Alex Heredia and Thuso Phala became part of the National Squad that represented the country during the AFCON 2013, with Kabelo Rangwaga joining later.

Sitting here, emotions running through us, we remember how Dikwena broke records, celebrated, lost and played draws with teams in the first half of the season. Then we remember how they dominated the log, their exciting style of play and going on to break yet more records. Two games come to mind, between Bloemfontein Celtics and Ajax Cape Town where Stars had to return with disappointment. Immediately after those two games, the boys' attitude changed strategically and made sure they represented us well. Moving from the 5th position, they went up to the 2nd, which they maintained until the end. Dikwena went to beat teams such as Mamelodi Sundowns, SuperSport United, Free State Stars, and became the only team to beat Kaizer Chiefs in the league, at that time of the season. Platinum Stars won Q2 Innovation, with Cavin Johnson and Henrico Botes winning Coach and Player of The Quarter respectively. Stars emerged winners when they beat Golden Arrows 6 - 4, a record breaking game when Arrows was leading 4 - 2. For months, Dikwena were chasing the Absa Premiership title, by holding onto their number 2 spot until the end. Players like Tshepo Gumedede, Vuyo Mere, Lindokuhle Mbatha, Solomon Mathe, and Thabani Mthembu played soccer that left many on the edge of their seats. Robert Ng'ambi also played a major role and who could forget our leading goal scorer Mogakolodi Ngele and his fearful smashes? He went from being the most shy and quiet to the most talked about and the favourite in social media and on the pitch.

Platinum Stars completed their 2012/13 Absa Premiership on a high, by beating SuperSport United 3-0 during their last match at Royal Bafokeng Sports Palace, with goals from Tintswalo Tsalabala, Thuso Phala and Mogakolodi Ngele. Dikwena are now crowned Q4 Winners, runners up in the League. They have reached the Nedbank Cup Semi Finals and are looking forward to the next season. The boys have left for an off season break and they deserve it, our champions.

Congratulations Dikwena!

Puisano - a Conversation about RBA Service Provision

Your views on Sanitation and Refuse Services

This is the third in a series of articles reporting back to Morafe on the findings of a 2012 survey, called 'Puisano', which asked a representative sample of 700 RBN residents about their expectations, perceptions and levels of satisfaction with regard to services provided by the RBA. In this edition, we will highlight what you told us about sanitation and refuse removal services.

Sanitation

57% of surveyed households across the RBN reported having an unventilated pit latrine as their main form of sanitation. Another 17% have ventilated pit latrines. Only 14% of the surveyed households report having flush toilets connected to the municipal sewerage system and another 9% have flush toilets connected to a septic tank, adding up to 23% of household with some kind of water-born sanitation. Sanitation is one of the areas in which the RBN is lagging behind the South African average (57% with flush toilets connected to a sewerage system) and the North West average (42% with flush toilets connected to a sewerage system).

The Capital and South East Regions have the highest percentage of households with flush toilets of some kind (33% and 32%, respectively). The North East Region has the highest percentage of ventilated pit toilets (46%) followed by the Central Region (24%). The North, South East and Central Regions have the highest incidence of unventilated pit toilets (66%, 63% and 62%, respectively), suggesting the greatest need for improvements to the sanitation system.

Levels of dissatisfaction with pit latrines are high, although satisfaction is slightly better for households with ventilated pit latrines compared with unventilated latrines. 69% of respondents said they would not be prepared to pay a levy to improve sanitation services, since they say that they cannot afford to pay for such a service or they believe that sanitation services should be provided for free. 16% of respondents said that they would be willing to pay for sanitation services because improvements would improve their health and the quality of their lives. 15% of respondents said that they do not know whether they would be willing to pay for sanitation service improvements.

Refuse removal

The introduction of solid waste removal across the RBN villages in the past two years has been a major contribution to improved health, hygiene and cleanliness in the area. In the formal villages (not including informal settlements), 87% of households report having their refuse removed by the RBA at least once a week. The RBN is well ahead of the national and provincial average in terms of refuse removal. The national average for weekly refuse removal is 62% of households, and 49% of households in the North West Province.

Of the households receiving waste removal services, 90% are either satisfied or very satisfied with this service. 27% of respondents said they would be willing to pay a levy, since they were satisfied with the quality of the service. 63%, however, said they would not be willing to pay a levy. The main reasons given for not being willing to pay was that they could not afford it and that they had never received a bill.

2013 Tedcor regional awards

Awards are never easy to come by, but the name Lebogang Ramorosa has become a dominant feature of award ceremonies. The latest accolade to be placed in his cabinet is the Tedcor Regional Community Contractors Award. Lebogang Ramorosa had previously won the National Contractors Award for his Mamorara Landscaping.

The awards were introduced to recognise the commitment to service delivery and good business management. The nominees are selected through a quality management audit. This year the event was held at the Royal Bafokeng Sports Palace on 24 May 2013.

As a winner of the regional award, Ramorosa has automatically gained entry to compete with the other regional winners for the National Community Contractor of the year award which will take place in Johannesburg, later this year.

Tedcor, a management contractor, Mamorara, Doti and LRT Services are the community based refuse collection companies within the Royal Bafokeng. Their services consist of collection of waste from every household within the Bafokeng area and transportation of the collected waste directly to the landfill site where it is buried and recyclables further sorted and bailed.

The Chief Executive Officer of Tedcor, Clarence Hamman, indicated that the service introduced to RBA is unique and was the first in the waste industry in South Africa, as it made for the separation of waste at source, and also the recyclable waste and the rest of waste is collected simultaneously. It was also the first project for Tedcor which was not linked to a municipality.

He also said that the awards were to acknowledge the work done by the community based contractors and give credit to work excellence and their performance. He closed by saying to the contractors, who did not win an award, that everything will come right in the end and if it is not right yet, it is not yet the end.

Harmonious adaptation for disable

Young Athletes at Iteko Special School with Charlie Merrow

Since the 2012 African Unity Cup, the presence of Special Olympics has been growing and expanding in the Royal Bafokeng Nation. Special Olympics is the world's largest sports organization for children and adults with intellectual disabilities and a global movement of people creating a new world of inclusion and a community where every single person is accepted and welcomed, regardless of their ability or disability.

Charlie Merrow, an American Peace Corps Volunteer working for Special Olympics South Africa, is living and working in Phokeng focusing on encouraging inclusion, tolerance and acceptance for all through youth leadership projects and sport programmes at various local schools in the Bafokeng area.

Merrow is based at RBI and is currently implementing Special Olympics programmes at Thethe High, Bafokeng High and Charora High as well as at Kutlwanong Resource School and Iteko Special School.

At the Bafokeng High School, Charlie is working with high school learners after school to promote Special Olympics, to explain intellectual disabilities and to encourage youth to work to dispel the myths and stereotypes that surround people with intellectual disabilities. The youth involved in these Special Olympics clubs are learning the importance of acceptance, tolerance, respect, diversity and inclusion through their weekly meetings with hands on activities, engaging discussions and field trips.

Last week, 30 Bafokeng High learners traveled to Kutlwanong for a day filled with cultural dancing, learning sign language, painting, limbo and a unified soccer match with learners from both schools. Later this month, youth from Charora and Thethe will also have the opportunity to spend time at a special school in the area working with peers.

Merrow explains the importance of unified events that bring youth with and without disabilities together by saying, "The most helpful and beneficial way for the high school learners to grow as more accepting and tolerant individuals is to work hand in hand with the special school learners to learn that no matter one's ability or disability, we are all the same and deserve love, respect and friendship. I have various trips planned throughout the remainder of the year taking the high school groups to the special schools for all the learners to work together and to form friendships. These trips, unified sports days and other Special Olympics events prove to the high school children that the special school learners are just like them and can also play sports, dance, draw, etc."

Part of Special Olympics philosophy is the belief that through millions of individual acts of inclusion where people with and without intellectual disabilities are brought together, long-standing myths are dispelled, negative attitudes changed and new opportunities to embrace and celebrate people with intellectual disabilities are created.

and children through special Olympic

Bafokeng High visits Kutlwanong Resource School

Promoting tolerance and celebrating diversity of all abilities are central pillars of Special Olympics. Learners from Bafokeng High explained why diversity is so important in the world by saying, "When we recognize and accept diversity and differences, we acknowledge that everybody does not have to be the same by believing in or doing the same things. Diversity is an asset to our development and welfare and should be valued, enjoyed, respected, accepted and embraced as an aspect of life that enriches and educates."

Selected learners from Bafokeng High, Thethe High, Charora High, Lebone II, Kutlwanong Resource School as well as Iteko Special School will come together in late September this year for an inclusive youth summit taking place at Lebone II College to discuss and strategise ways in which they may make their communities more inclusive.

Aside from the approaching youth summit, field trips and weekly meetings, youth are engaging and interacting together on the Internet through the Facebook Special Olympics online youth group. This Facebook group has been a positive and helpful medium for the youth from the various schools to come together online to stay in touch and to communicate.

Special Olympics South Africa CEO, Annemarie van Wieringen added, "The partnership between RBI and Special Olympics has been integral to the success of this initiative and we feel very privileged to be able to complement and enhance the great work that is being done in the schools within RBN. Given the opportunity, all of the high school learners have been extremely enthusiastic and engaging with those with special needs and we are confident that together we are building a more inclusive and accommodating generation of South Africans."

Merrow explains his time with Special Olympics in Phokeng by saying, "I have learned a tremendous amount while working for Special Olympics in Phokeng from the learners both with and without disabilities. I have been astonished by the creativity and abilities of the learners at both Iteko and Kutlwanong, I have been constantly impressed by the high school leaders' leadership and dedication to our youth group and I have appreciated the amazing support from the educators and school staffs at all the schools involved with Special Olympics.

Although the learners at the special schools have intellectual disabilities, their abilities on the sports field playing soccer, their creativity through art projects and drawing, their originality while dancing and their leadership at their respective schools has amazed me and I love working with this very special group of youth."

For more information on Special Olympics or to find out how you can get involved in the movement, contact Charlie Merrow at: Charlie.SpecialOlympics@gmail.com

Visitors of the show had the chance to see first-hand and hear about different types of RBN services.

The RBN team had a fantastic time at the Rustenburg Show, showcasing a selection of some of RBN's various and most specialised services, attracting widespread attention from both young and old visitors including school children.

The Executive Mayor of Rustenburg Local Municipality, Cllr Mpho Khunou spent his precious time with the exhibitors, ensuring that every exhibitor feels special and welcomed at the show.

All the way from Kanana village in Central region, Mogale Mogale's cultural group called Kgogamasigo, entertained people at the opening of the show on Saturday, 25 May. Much to the applause of the audience, they performed among others their popular song "Ke lapile", from their latest album 'Ke lapile ke dipuo tsa batho'.

Many of our stunning products generated interest at the Rustenburg Show, but one in particular was the kiddies corner which displayed books and other educational materials.

MACMILLAN SETSWANA AND ENGLISH ILLUSTRATED DICTIONARY

MACMILLAN Setswana and English Illustrated Dictionary

Bafokeng

DT Cole LM Moncho-Warren

R425.95

The Macmillan Setswana and English Illustrated Dictionary, the first major scholarly resource on the Setswana language, is the product of 15 years of research by Professor Desmond T Cole and Lally Moncho-Warren. It includes some 25 000 entries in Setswana and English, as well as over 150 illustrations.

Professor Cole is Professor Emeritus of African Languages at the University of the Witwatersrand, and a noted expert on Setswana. His passion for flora and fauna in southern Africa is reflected in the many original illustrations of plants in the dictionary, together with their Setswana names.

The Macmillan Setswana and English Illustrated Dictionary is intended for use by scholars and academics, students of life sciences, physics, and chemistry, as well as indigenous knowledge systems. The dictionary represents Setswana as it is spoken by an estimated 5 million people in southern Africa from Botswana, Namibia, South Africa and Zimbabwe.

Local suppliers benefit from the RRT Construction

Construction on the new public transport infrastructure for the rapidly growing city of Rustenburg is well underway, as the Rustenburg Rapid Transport (RRT) project accelerates its pace to meet its infrastructure deadlines for Phase 1 services operating from the end of the 2015/16 financial year.

It's been good news for local suppliers and sub-contractors who have benefited from over R65 million spent in the local economy over the past ten months, while over two-thirds of the jobs created have gone to 250 local workers during this phase of construction.

One of the core tenets of the RRT project is the use of local suppliers and where possible, materials, and a minimum threshold of 25% has been set for the consultants and contractors in the implementation of the project. In turn the economic benefits are filtering down into the wider community.

Rose Moboboya, Director of Ropanang Trading Enterprises agrees that the spinoff of job creation is putting food on people's tables. She has been subcontracted by MCivils to lay kilometres of paving, edging and curbing for the RRT. Her team of 20 workers will not have to worry about how to feed their families for the next few months.

A variety of local materials are being sourced. These include cement from locally-based hardware stores such as Platinum Build It, Bucu and Builders Warehouse Rustenburg.

Commenting on the progress thus far, the Director of the RRT project, Marks Rapoo, said that RRT is well on track for completion the first phase of the RRT by the end of the 2015/2016 financial year.

"By early 2016, when Phase 1 of the RRT comes into operation, 45% of the RRT system will be in place and will have an immediate impact for Rustenburg residents. While we develop the infrastructure, local job creation and support of local businesses is vital for the future support and success of the system by these same people as passengers," says Rapoo.

Looking ahead, additional Phase 1 road construction contracts will be awarded covering BRT Corridor B, from the CBD to the north-east on the R510 towards Boitekong. Construction which includes three routes running on this BRT lane should commence this June.

All routes under construction will receive road upgrades to provide dedicated two-way bus lanes and lanes for mixed traffic, pedestrian sidewalks, cycle paths, footbridges, storm-water drainage canals, landscaped verges and street lights. Municipal installation will also be catered for, with sleeves inserted under the roadways and sidewalks to serve as conduits for future pipes or cables.

Also scheduled for construction this year is the RRT Central Station. The construction tender for this facility is to be advertised by mid-year, with actual construction scheduled to begin in October.

Overall, the rapid progress of key contracts to ensure all infrastructure is in place for Phase 1 of the RRT project is a positive indication of the commitment and innovation of all the engineering and construction teams involved and a clear endorsement of the ability of local suppliers, small business and labour to provide the needed services to make this public transport project a reality.

Cavin Johnson

 – the man behind Dikwena's success

Cavin Johnson was announced as the Platinum Stars Coach just before the start of the 2012/13 Absa Premiership season and never disappointed. He was made "Coach of the Second Quarter Season", as well as being a finalist of the "PSL Coach of the Season" with Clinton Larsen and Stuart Baxter.

He moved the Team from 10th position to finish 2nd on the log, reached the Nedbank Cup Semi Finals, and managed to be the only coach to win 6 - 4 matches over a team that was leading 4 - 2 in the 11th hour. Segogoe sat down with the Coach to draw inspiration, and get to understand the man behind Dikwena's success.

Coach, it has been an open secret that you have been dominating the media, because of your dedication, focus, and determination. What has been your inspiration?

CJ: I have been dedicated since I started coaching. I love to coach; it is my number one priority, besides my family. One has to have the ability to make sure that whatever profession you are in you do it to the best of your ability, something that I have learnt over the years. Because we are in the limelight as a PSL team, the media will come to fall. I have forever been like this, always!

Did you ever think you will be where you are currently, considering the fact that you were only looking for a mere Top 5 position?

CJ: As a club we did not expect that! Only because of the personnel we have within the team. As a coach I pushed them hard to build the brand of football in the club, in doing all that we ended second.

You played inspirational soccer that left some of us on the edge of our seats this season, who do you look up to and where do you draw your inspiration from?

CJ: Inspiration is drawn from spending time, over the years with some of the best coaches in the world. Carlos Pereira, Gordon Igesund, coaches that inspired me all along. My family as well, with my wife and three kids, they inspire me to achieve more.

What would be your best and worst moments in mind, during the season?

CJ: BEST - Beating Kaizer Chiefs; Winning 6 - 4 over Golden Arrows when we were 4-2; Looking at how the team played in games we lost and won. Worst - Losing to Amazulu during the 90th second of the game; Losing to Ajax 4 - 1

What do you normally do before the game starts or rather do when you walk down the tunnel to the pitch?

CJ: I do not normally do all those rituals besides praying with the players. I complete the team talk in the hotel before the game starts. One thing about me, I wear two watches (training & normal) for the training watch gives some sense of what we did during practice.

You are very tricky during interviews, and most media houses say you always play mind games, how true is this?

CJ: I think if you read between the lines. I never play mind games with football. Football is not about mind games; it is about what you know. I said Kaizer Chiefs will win the league, who won? I try to be honest within the boundaries of football.

Are you happy with the results you have achieved so far? If not, why?

CJ: I am more than happy. We have superseded all the key performance areas we had at the beginning of the season. I am more than happy with what we have achieved and that goes to all the team members.

You are going away for an off season break, how are you planning to rest?

CJ: It has been a tough season. I am taking my family on a weekend getaway, since my kids are at school. I will spend my time with my family; it's been long since we have been together.

Looking beyond 2012/13, the 2013/14 Season kicks off in July, your plans?

CJ: To have the team as ready as possible, to have at least 2 or 3 new players in the team, those that can bring a little bit of quality we want within the team. We want to compete with ourselves to improve our football on the pitch.

And lastly, your message to fans that always stood behind you and your players?

CJ: To all the supporters, loyal individuals who have come to every single game at the stadium, we'd like to say thank you very much. Have a good rest out of football. Go out to friends and tell them to watch the club that is trying to build a different brand of football in South Africa.

Tlaseng Primary School soccer team will not be an easy team to beat at the DANONE 2013 Tournament on 22 June at Reiger Park stadium in Boksburg, Gauteng Province. The school qualified to play in the national finals when they became the North West Provincial Champions after winning in the Bojanala Region. The winner at the national championships will represent South Africa in the DANONE Nations Cup in London on 07 September 2013. We wish them all the best!

GUMEDE GETS HONOURS AS THE YOUNG PROMISING PLAYER

Platinum Stars youngster Tshepo Gumede was honoured at the PSL's 2012/13 end of season awards on the 26th May 2013.

The 22-year-old was named Nedbank Cup Young Player of the Tournament after an excellent campaign in which he helped Dikwena to the brink of the final. Gumede has formed an excellent partnership with Benson Mhlongo at the back for Stars this season and has been rewarded for his efforts with this accolade.

Having arrived from SuperSport United at the start of the season, he quickly settled into life at Dikwena and looks to have an excellent future ahead of him.
